How is UV-C used in Waste Water?

UV-C plays a crucial role in wastewater treatment by disinfecting water.

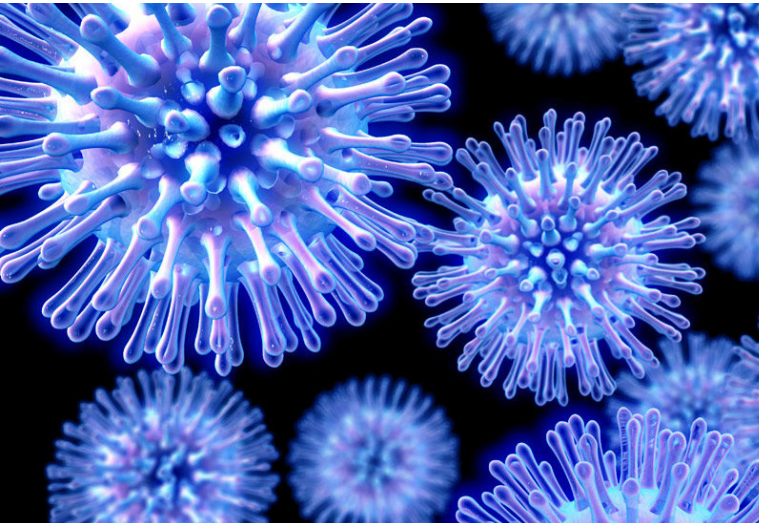

UV-C light is so effective for disinfection as it disrupts the DNA & RNA of microorganisms such as bacteria, viruses and fungi.

UVC light is applied to a flow of wastewater after primary and second treatment. As the water passes through a UVC chamber, the microorganisms are exposed to the UV-C light, destroys their genetic material and renders them inactive. The UVC light can destroy bacteria, viruses, fungi and other harmful organisms present in the waste water.

Benefits

There are many benefits of using UV-C within waste water treatment.
